DETAILED ACTION

Reasons for Allowance

1. This action is responsive to the applicant's request for reconsideration, filed on 5/31/2006.
2. Applicant previously canceled claims 1-27.
3. Claims 28-38 are pending in the case. Claim 28 is an independent claim.
4. The rejection of claims 28-38 made under 35 USC § 103 as recited in the previous office action (dated 1/27/2006) is withdrawn in view of applicant's remarks.
5. The following is an examiner's statement for reasons for allowance:

Regarding independent claim 28, the prior art of record (including Wang et al., US Patent 5,490,217 and Tammaro, US Patent Publication 2001/0011246) neither anticipates, nor suggests to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, the claimed feature of processing electronic applications for admissions to institutions, where the application processing includes transmitting over a computer network an application to an applicant to complete, receiving over the computer network the application from the applicant, automatically generating a request bearing a machine readable code and human readable information, the human readable information specifying a document to be retrieved and associated with the electronic application form, automatically transmitting the request to a third party via facsimile, receiving from the third party via facsimile the previously generated and transmitted request and the requested document, and automatically reading the machine readable code on the request in order to associate the document with previously received application.

Wang's invention describes a system that uses or adds machine-readable information to a document so that the document may be automatically processed, however, Wang requires manual intervention to process documents that do not already include preprinted machine-readable identification (Wang's invention manually adds the machine-readable code to documents without a machine readable code for processing). The claimed invention allows processing of documents that do not include machine-readable identification without human intervention by using the machine-readable code from the request to facilitate the document processing. Tamaro, likewise, fails to disclose this feature.

6. Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
